the State of Utah's 2019 Comprehensive Annual Financial Report
*Issues Annual Statement of Long-Term Liabilities and Commitments

Salt Lake City, UTAH –

The State of Utah's (State) Division of Finance recently completed the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report (CAFR) for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2019. The Office of the State Auditor (Office) audited the CAFR and issued its audit opinion, which is contained within the CAFR. The Office compliments the Division of Finance on its hard work and professionalism in completing the CAFR.

In addition, the Office released its annual Statement of Long-Term Liabilities and Commitments for the State of Utah. The State's constitutional debt limit as of June 30, 2019 was $6.24 billion. During the ordinary course of operation, the State and its various component units incur an array of debt and other long-term commitments. This report provides a simplified summary of that debt and those commitments.

As of June 30, 2019, long-term liabilities for the State's governmental activities was $4.10 billion or approximately 66% of the constitutional debt limit. The State's business-type activities reported $1.38 billion in long-term liabilities, while the State's component units had $4.88 billion in long-term liabilities. This represents an increase of $2.65 billion in component unit long-term liabilities over 2018, primarily due to the inclusion this year of the Utah Transit Authority as a discrete component unit of the State.

State Auditor John Dougall commented, "Utah is a rapidly growing state. It is important for citizen to monitor the use of debt by its government."
